Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

Mr. Brausa, across the street, sitting in the shade of his door eating a popsicle.

Building a small picket fence and the kids are helping us. They had lumber scattered all over the yard in nothing flat.

Digging the holes yesterday for the posts and as fast as we dug it out, the kids would start throwing it.

We patiently explained that if they threw the dirt away as fast as we dug it out, how would we have enough to put back around the posts. The five year old told us we could dig some more holes and use the dirt to put around the posts.

With all the help we are getting, we don't know whether we will ever get the fence built or not.

Mrs. Everett on North Fourth street has a nice motel. It is located in a quiet section of town, and is as modern as can be.

Seventeenth street cuts across the Lynn Grove highway now and goes over into the woods South of Main.

If you wondered what the two boys were doing that were sitting at the corner of the Bank of Murray last week, they were counting traffic. They had a little board with counters on it, and they not only counted the total traffic, but kept account of the various sizes of trucks, etc.

We wondered what they were doing, so we went up and asked them.

Old Economy Grocery building being renovated, new windows, framing around the windows, etc.

Having trouble with our cat. He stands under the parakeets cage with that you know what look in his eye. Licks his chops and stands on his hind feet, trying to figure out some way to get at the bird. He's made several unsuccessful leaps. The bird seems to know what the score is too, and sits quietly while the cat is doing his figuring.

Dr. Gish has some nice offices in the Tucker Building. He recently remodeled the place and moved in.

U.S. Will Defend Itself When Necessary Eisenhower Says

By DONALD J. GONZALES, United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, voicing deep concern over Red China's attacks on Allied planes, declared today that the United States will defend itself wherever necessary.

But the President also told a news conference he expects that the American carriers that have been patrolling off the coast of Hainan Island in the South China Sea would be leaving the area shortly.

He flatly rejected Red China's charges that American planes, which shot down two Communist attacking planes, were over Chinese territory.

We are perfectly certain our planes were where they were supposed to be, the President said.

The President was asked to comment on the Chinese Communist destruction of a British airliner last Friday with the loss of three American lives, and the subsequent incident when the Communist planes were shot down. A reporter said "some allies" believe the incident was badly handled by the United States "and might touch off a war."

Defending Own Interests
Mr. Eisenhower said incidents of this kind cause deep concern and

Idea Of School Districts Vetoed

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The state attorney general's office today vetoed an idea that might have resulted in larger tax collections by some independent school districts.

Today's ruling stated that independent school districts cannot on their own initiative adopt the county property assessment rolls for tax purposes.

Property assessments were raised in about 60 Kentucky counties recently by the Kentucky Tax Commission, causing county assessments to be higher than city assessments in many localities.

Thus, if independent school districts were able to adopt the county figures, their tax yield would be higher.

The opinion, which went to state Superintendent of Public Education Wendell P. Butler, said there is no provision in state law allowing school districts to select the assessment to be used for school purposes.

Electrician Saves A Civil Defense Drill

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. — UP
The Dutch boy who plugged the hole in the dike with his finger has nothing on James Smith, an electrician who saved a local Civil Defense drill. After a last minute power failure knocked out, among other things the warning siren in the hookup. Smith and another electrician located the trouble in an electric meter. Smith held an overloaded and loose wire in position while the siren sounded exactly on time.

Church Burns Note On Parsonage

The church is now out of debt, with the exception of the newly purchased property which lies to the East of the present structure.

Marathon Heat Wave Continues To Burn Nation

By UNITED PRESS
A marathon heat wave burned with renewed fierceness in the nation's midsection today, claiming new acres of seared crops with every day it lasted.

The baking heat moved out of its Southwest stronghold Tuesday to scorch the Midwest again. Farm officials from Illinois to Oklahoma repeated warnings that rain is urgently needed.

The U.S. Weather Bureau offered little hope of relief. An extended forecast covering the next four days predicted temperatures 5 to 10 degrees above normal to the Midwest.

The mercury went over 100 in 23 Texas cities Tuesday, setting all time records of 110 and 109 at Del Rio and Laredo, respectively. At Hobart, Calif., it was 102, while Thermal, Calif., became the nation's hottest town with 115.

In Chicago the thermometer registered over 90 for the 10th day this month and the 92 at Los Angeles tied a 68-year-old record.

Water was so scarce at Sapulpa, Okla., that firemen couldn't put out a $300,000 fire in four downtown buildings until telephone operators called hundreds of homes and persuaded residents to turn off their lawn sprinklers.

The bone dry weather extended to the East and farmers at Waynesburg, Pa., hoped for traditional July 29 rains to dampen their crops. Rain has fallen on Waynesburg on July 29 in 70 of the last 77 years.

Meanwhile weekly federal-state crop bulletins, out Tuesday, showed that last week's showers weren't enough to restore parched crops and depleted livestock.

Iowa needed rain over virtually all portions of the state and the Nebraska corn crop was described as "stunted badly" and "burned."

The rains came too late to "rescue" a considerable fraction of the Illinois corn crop and water supplies were in "critical or near-critical condition" in 20 Illinois towns.

In Oklahoma the report laid upland corn was "complete failure" and predicted heavier cattle markings unless rain comes soon.

The weather was comparatively pleasant outside of the heat belt. Temperatures ranged in the 60s and 70s in most areas and cooled as much as 12 degrees in the upper Midwest.

First Anniversary Of Korea War Marked By Jet Clashes

By AL KAFF, United Press Staff Correspondent
PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — A year ago today the shooting stopped in Korea.

The first anniversary of the cease fire is marked by a new clash between American and Chinese Communist warplanes but Korea's battlefields are silent.

Here at Panmunjom, a bored American Lieutenant sits at a desk with two telephone lines at his elbow in a plywood shack a few yards from the truce line.

Two double strand wires an eighth of an inch thick pierce the Iron Curtain and connect the lieutenant with a minor Communist officer, Chinese or North Korean, in another shack about 100 yards away.

They speak to each other in crisp, business like tones across the armistice zone created after three years of fighting that took the lives of 29,500 American soldiers and more than 400,000 United Nations and South Korean soldiers and civilians.

Red Does More Talking
The Communist officer places most of the calls and he talks the most. He has telephoned complaints almost daily since the cease fire went into effect at 10 p.m. July 27, 1953.

In the year since the shooting ended, the Communists have accused the U. N. of 345 armistice violations. The U. N. has charged the Reds with 54. The U. N. admitted 38 violations, the Reds only two. The remainder were either denied or are "under investigation."

In a cluster of tents not far from the shacks live the most controversial figures of the Korean armistice. They are the truce inspectors from Switzerland and Sweden and Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia.

President Sygman Rhee recently called them "nothing more than spies." Less violent critics say the inspectors have failed to police the truce in North Korea because the Communist government will not permit them to.

On a slight rise near the telephone line between freedom and communism stands a wooden tent frame, sagging and open to rain and sun. It was once covered and in it lived a strong willed Indian general who won the respect of both the Reds and the Allies, K.S. Thimayya.

Thimayya was the last man to make any kind of friendly contact at this outpost of two worlds.

The telephone line through the Iron Curtain here is only 100 yards long. It ends in a shack presided over by an unknown Communist officer and there is little peace on that circuit.

State Farmers Got 32,000 Tons Of Hay

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The federal government distributed a total of 32,000 tons of hay to farmers in 60 Kentucky counties under the drought relief hay program that ended April 30, it was disclosed today.

Under the program, the federal government helped pay freight bills for hay sent to farmers hit in the 1953 drought.

A state department of Agriculture report said 7,805 Kentucky farmers received hay under the program. Federal expense totaled $223,637, an average of $6.99 per ton. The federal government also paid $450,000 last fall for the program.

State Agriculture Commissioner Ben S. Adams indicated yesterday he may ask President Eisenhower to declare parts of Kentucky a drought disaster area again this year if a survey now under way shows Kentucky farm conditions have become critical.

Conservation Legislation Is Reviewed

By YANDEL WRATHER, Soil Conservation Service

Since this is Conservation Week thought it a good time to mention some new legislation measures nearing enactment in current session of Congress.

H. R. 6788, the Hope-Aiken Watershed Protection and Flood Bill. This Bill is to carry out the upstream watershed recommendation in President Eisenhower's July 31, 1953, message to Congress. The Bill offers local watershed groups which are willing to assume responsibility and a share of cost the opportunity to call for and obtain in a reasonable time federal assistance in solving these water and soil conservation problems.

Local people must initiate all action under the act, and must be willing to share a substantial part of the cost in accordance with the direct benefits they will derive.

After the local people, in form of a local organization, have determined that they are interested in sponsoring an authorized watershed program, they may submit an application for planning assistance to the Secretary of Agriculture. The end product of the investigation and surveys, if approved, would be a watershed work plan spelling out the recommended program as agreed upon, and in conformance with wishes of the local people.

S. 2137 is an act to amend the water facilities act, which would extend the water facilities act nationwide and also provide credit for conservation work.

H. R. 8300 is to revise the internal revenue laws to treat as deductible expenses expenditure made for soil and water conservation work.

Callaway County Soil Conservation District Supervisors have given considerable time and study to the watershed approach to our water and soil conservation problem.

Farmers are giving much more attention to water conserving practices. Most reservoirs are being established or being considered not only for stock water but also as a means of reducing amounts and rate of run off from farms. Also many reservoirs are being established with the idea of furnishing water to gardens, tobacco, summer pasture and some farms are now establishing a complete irrigation system.

A complete water and soil conservation program in the watershed will not only aid in preventing floods in the low lands in time of large rains, but will hold water on the watershed for use in times like we are now having.

TODAY'S SPORTS PARADE

NEW YORK, July 27—(UP)—Amazing Willie Mays could be destined to break Babe Ruth's home run record but the man who came the closest to that much-sought mark doesn't believe it will happen this year.

You can take it from Hank Greenberg, whose 58 in 1938 fell just two short of the Bambino's greatest record, that sooner or later the storybook 60 is going to be surpassed. And the general manager of the Cleveland Indians thinks it might be Mays who does it.

But the challengers are going to have to change their formula. Ruth posted his record with four homers in April, 12 in May, nine in each of the months of June, July and August, and a staggering 17 in September. That final month's out put is what has wrecked each of the hopeful pursuers in the past.

"Whoever does it, and somebody will some day, he's going to have to get away out in front of Ruth's pace before that final month," Greenberg diagrams. "If he needs only seven or eight through the whole final month, then he's got a chance."

Need 12 Per Month
Big Hank, looking as fit as in the days when he was hammering home runs wholesale for the Detroit Tigers, figures that the man who ultimately does crack baseball's most glamorous record must be on a 12-a-month schedule.

"That would give him about 52 going into September," he explains, "and then it would be possible."

But, he cautions, there are other considerations. These, he pointed out, are:

"He has to finish in his home park, where most hitters play better ball."

"He has to be on a team which has a strong lineup, so that the pitchers can't afford to walk him."

"And he has to be with a team which scores a lot so that he gets those precious extra times at bat."

Wanted RBI Record
Greenberg points to his own case in 1938 as example.

"I wasn't pressing for home runs," he insists. "As a matter of fact I wanted the runs-batted-in record more than the home run record and was more disappointed when I fell one short with 193."

"But, as for the home runs," he adds, "I had 58 with five games left to play. Then we went to Cleveland and played three games in a big stadium. Then, too, I walked four times in one game."

"I wasn't nervous—but those pitchers were," he chuckled. "They don't want to be known as the guy who threw the ball which broke Ruth's record."

Which brought him back to Mays, who prior to Monday night's game had 34 homers in 96 games—where Ruth had 34 in 98 games.

"He isn't enough ahead of Ruth to give himself that necessary September cushion," Greenberg figured. "That last big month which Ruth had makes his record very misleading. Matching him up to here isn't so tough."

"But Willie will find out September that 17 is a right rough number."

Which would indicate that the record is safe for another year—and until the challengers change their four-bagger formula.

'A Long, Hard Road' Ahead For Dodgers

By Fred Down

United Press Sports Writer

Old pros PeeWee Reese and Jackie Robinson agreed today that the New York Giants have been yanked back to earth but insisted "it'll be a long, hard road" before the Brooklyn Dodgers win the National League pennant.

"We beat Sal Maglie and they looked terrible," Reese conceded after the Dodgers' 9-1 rout of the first-place Giants Monday night. "But they're got a sound club and they're not going to panic. They're no more panicky now than we were three weeks ago when they beat us six straight games."

The loss not only marked the end of Maglie's four-year mastery over the Dodgers at Ebbets Field, but was the Giants' fifth straight defeat—their longest losing streak of the year. Their once massive seven-game lead had dwindled to a mere three games and there was talk that Leo Durocher's bubble had burst, and that the Giants were about to bow out of the race with as thunderous a crash as when they entered it.

Reese, Robinson Disagree
But Reese and Robinson refused to accept the theory and Manager Walt Alton was inclined to agree, although Brooklyn's "Silent Man" shrugged off the debate as "just another game along a long road."

"We're going to catch 'em all right," said Robinson, who batted out three hits in the 15-hit assault on four Giant pitchers. "But it won't be easy. They're playing bad ball but they're a good team. Maglie looked no better or worse than he's pitched against us many times before. We'll win because we've the better ball club, not because they're going to collapse."

Robinson and Reese have given us needed impetus in the last week," Alton said. "Now it's up to Roy Campanella."

"He's pressing so hard," Alton continued, referring to Campanella. "He could be the key man for us now and consequently the key man of the entire race."

To Have Hand Examined
Campanella, who is scheduled to have his injured left hand examined Wednesday, failed to hit safely in four tries Monday night. But Alton isn't giving up hope on the two-time "Most Valuable Player" in the National League.

"He'll be all right," Alton said. "He's pressing now because he wants to help us so much. But there's nothing physically wrong with him. He'll come around."

The Taming of Carney Wilde by BART SPICER

When Charles Alexander Stewart abandoned with funds from a bank in Philadelphia he placed himself in a precarious career in jeopardy. Wilde was responsible for the security of the bank. It was up to him, now, to find the thief who had disappeared after killing a policeman in the course of his flight. Wilde's troubles mount, when his girl, Jane Grodnik, slopes with his friend Penn Maxwell, Jane's father, Charles Grodnik, of local police, is as displeased with the match as is Carney, but they coolly humored low to the girl's choice.

CHAPTER FOUR
LIFE in Philadelphia was going to be difficult for me when I got out of the hospital—and it would be very unprofitable, too. I knew I didn't really care much whether the boat trip was a useful idea or not. Just having a legitimate excuse to get away from Philadelphia for a while was good enough for me.

"Can you give me a letter or something?" I asked. "In case I run into..."
Grodnik's grim face cracked into a wide grin. He pulled out a long official envelope and gave it to me. "Got the superintendent to write it for you," he said. "Show it to any cop and you'll get the best cell in the house."

"Captain," I muttered, "I'm beginning to think you know too much about handling me."
"I'm an expert in dangling carrots," Grodnik laughed. "And no jackass can resist them."
I sat back and stretched my good arm. "We're going to look a little foolish if Stewart got to South America or wherever before we even started."

"We look sort of foolish anyway," Grodnik said sourly. "Okay, captain. When does the boat leave?"
"Tomorrow night," I said quickly. "Can I make it?"
"Easy," Grodnik said. "A train tonight or a plane tomorrow. I reserved a deluxe bedroom on the boat, just in case. It's waiting for you."

"Fine," I said. "I'll catch a train tonight. I don't care much for flying over the mountains during the winter. You'll have to help me pack. And we've got a date at the Bellevue this evening, too. Remember?"
Slowly the laughter died from Grodnik's face. But he nodded agreeably.

As the train came into Cincinnati, the porter tapped at my door, pushed it open. "Take the bag, sir?"
"Let's wait till the car is clear," I said. "See if you can get one of the redcaps to come for me, will you?"
